“... between the extremes of the established regional stages and tiny theatrical groups struggling to survive are a number of surprising success stories. The Antaeus Company is one of these.”

David Mermelstein
The New York Times
Letter from the Artistic Directors

"Youth, Nikitushka! Freshness! Life! . . . Where you've got art, there's no room for old age, there's no room for loneliness or being ill. Even death's only half itself!"

— Anton Chekhov, Swan Song

Chekhov’s words in the play you’ll see tonight so poignantly express why we are here, and why we’re happy you are here with us. Art is what sustains us, gives meaning to the mundane, permanence to the passing, and calls us to our highest potential as people.

What you will see tonight is the great wealth of our company -- wealth that won't be immediately obvious when you walk in. You won't see it in the rather modest (but most welcome) studio theater you sit in. You won't see it in our offices, or if you walk a little north, in our shell of a mainstage theatre. You won't see it in our bank account or in our (non-existent) salaries. Our wealth resides in our ensemble itself, in the talent and expertise and standing of our actors, directors, designers and other theater artists we attract; in Founding Artistic Director Dakin Matthews’ vision for the company, in the members of our diverse and multi-talented Board of Directors, and in the enthusiasm of our audiences, many of you loyal supporters who have been with us for years. What we already have is priceless: the rest is easy, it only takes cash.

....Well, easy, might not be the best word. Raising the amount of money we need to realize our dream of producing important theater on a regular basis makes for a tough road ahead. Walk around while you are here tonight, envision the cultural enclave that we imagine here at NewPlace Theatre Center. See what we see: a mainstage with a fully scheduled season of plays, a studio theater presenting a variety of workshop productions, a full-fledged acting school training the next generation of classical actors, an outdoor café for patrons and the community; a research library in the classics for students and scholars. See if the work we do excites you and inspires you to get involved. If you do share our vision, we urge you to HELP US MAKE IT REAL. Your support in any capacity — in-kind donations, volunteer help, and, of course, fully deductible financial contributions - will help make our vision a reality.

In 2000 the New York Times said of us "...between the extremes of the established regional stages and tiny theatrical groups struggling to survive are a number of surprising success stories. The Antaeus Company is one of these." The struggle for survival continues on a daily basis. But tonight, thanks to our wonderful artists — John, Emily, Anne Gee, JD, Dawn, Marty, Angela, Harry Arye, Tamara, Jeremy, Lawrence, Philip, Laura, Nick, Michele, Sabin, Michael, Andy, Stephanie, Jay, Vaughan, Tuesday, Leigh, Young, Kaitlin, Amy, Andrew, Dakin — and thanks to you, we celebrate our riches.

TEN EXCITING SHOWS!

COLLABORATORS: A new play written and directed by Jonathan Lynn. Petain and DeGaulle, two of France’s greatest figures, in a fascinating drama of friendship and rivalry through two world wars.

BARTLEBY, THE SCRIVENER and A GHOST IN MY OWN GARDEN: Two new American one-act musical plays; Jan Powell and Ken Stone created BARTLEBY, and GHOST is the work of Matthew Goldsby and Scott Guy.

AMERICAN BUFFALO and BOSTON MARRIAGE: Three crooked men, three crooked women, two amazing plays by David Mamet. The classical theatre of the twenty-second century from one of America’s greatest playwrights!

DON JUAN: Women enjoyed and destroyed — Tirso de Molina’s Golden Age play in a new rhyming verse translation by Dakin Matthews.

THE ACADEMY COMPANY in three terrific projects: NORA, Ingmar Bergman’s fascinating adaptation of Ibsen’s classic drama of a woman’s awakening; TWELFTH NIGHT by William Shakespeare; RHYMES, RANTS AND LIES, an original poetry evening that’s part cabaret, part truth-or-dare game.

THE DICKENS PROJECT: Our massively ambitious two-part epic, written by Janet Dulin Jones and director Paul Lazarus, presented in two-night and marathon weekend performances, including a special two-night gala at Pasadena’s beautiful new Boston Court on June 28 & 29.

Join us for SpringFest 2004

A full month of performances, workshops, and staged readings — ten different shows!

Last year’s MAYFEST featured such projects as Mother Courage and Her Children, Pera Palas, Fashion, Trial by Jury, The Long Christmas Dinner, and readings of plays by Antaean playwright-members. Also featured was the inspiring work of our young Academy Company.

June 2004 will bring even more, all leading up to the first public presentation of an epic new theatre piece: THE DICKENS PROJECT by Janet Dulin Jones and Paul Lazarus, in which young journalist Charles Dickens unravels a dark crime in the chaotic and dangerous London of Princess Victoria. An Antaeus Original!

Don’t miss this extraordinary festival of classic work by Antaeans, Academy members and Guest Artists.

Anton Chekhov (1860-1904) was born into a family of emancipated serfs and eventually went on to medical school, where he began writing short stories to help support his family. He wrote daily during his short adult life, publishing over 600 items — yet he only wrote seven plays and ten short one-act “skits”. Although he is best known for his full length plays (The Seagull, Uncle Vanya, The Three Sisters, The Cherry Orchard) which he wrote late in his career, during his lifetime his most popular plays were his one-act comic sketches. In 1887 he wrote his only serious one act, The Swan Song about which he wrote: “It will take 15 to 20 minutes to perform, the shortest drama on earth. My play took me an hour and five minutes to write.” The Swan Song based on his own short story, Calchas (1886), received little notice during his lifetime. Early in his writing career he quickly and easily mastered the art of the vaudeville one-act. The first of these was The Bear (1888) which quickly became his most popular work with actors, audiences and amateurs. Chekhov wrote: “I live off the labors of my Bear.” That same year he wrote The Proposal, which he called “a wretched, vulgar, boring little skit… a lousy farce,” but served as a respite from his more serious stories. He planned to write a hundred such farces a year, yet he completed only one more vaudeville, The Anniversary (1891) based on his own short story, A Defenseless Creature.

Jay Mower, Assistant Director

A word about the translators by Nicholas Saunders

Frank Dwyer and I began collaborating together on Chekhov translations in New York City about 18 years ago, when he was directing a staged reading of Chekhov’s, The Wood Demon and I was playing the role of Prof. Serebryakov. I brought my Russian original of The Wood Demon to the first rehearsal and almost immediately Frank spotted a strange sounding speech. Checking in my Russian book, I agreed with him wholeheartedly and we both realized that little of the translation we were using had much similarity to the original of the wonderful early work of Anton Chekhov. Encouraged by Frank who has an amazing rapport with Russian Dramaturgy, being a fellow actor as well as director, playwright and poet, we started writing a new translation of The Wood Demon from scratch— word by word from the Russian text — with the sole aim of making every spoken line come out of every American actor’s lips as if Chekhov had written the original dialogue in the English language. We’ve had a successful production of our translation of The Wood Demon at the Mark Taper Forum in 1994 directed by my esteemed collaborator. We’ve had a production of our translation of The Seagull commissioned by the San Jose Repertory Company, a Broadway production of Bulgakov’s Zoya’s Apartment at the Circle In The Square Theatre in New York City and have translated The Cherry Orchard (performed for radio by L.A. Theatre Works) as well as Maxim Gorky “Dachniki” The Summer People. Finally we got around to translating the other two Chekhov masterpieces, Uncle Vanya and The Three Sisters. And now you are watching the World Premiere of four of his one-acts. There is another one-act translation, On The Harmfulness Of Tobacco, waiting in the wings. The Fifth, and, we hope, the final draft of Nikolai Gogol’s The Government Inspector has just been completed by us. We have great hopes for it.

Television credits include The Guardian, Judging Amy, CSI, Friends, ER, The West Wing, Just Shoot Me, Millennium, The Practice, Ellen (as Adam Greene) and Six Feet Under, on which he plays the recurring role of Frank Mueller, MFFC. He lives in Los Angeles with his wife, Lisa, and their two dogs; one good, one ‘nervous’.

Connor Kelly-Eiding
Sasha

Connor attends the Los Angeles County High School for the Arts, in the Theatre Department. She has done numerous plays, including Tom Sawyer, And Song of America. Her last stage appearance was as Bottom in A Midsummer Night's Dream. She is thrilled to be working with the amazing, distinguished actors in the Antaeus Company. Connor would like to thank her family for their love and support, and the Antaeus Company for this opportunity.

Michael Kirby
Yakov

Michael has studied theatre at LAMDA, USC, and Cal State Fullerton, where he received his B.A. Favorite roles include: Horatio in Hamlet (Curtis Theatre), Lysander in A Midsummer Night’s Dream (McOwen Theatre, London), and Jerry in Zoo Story (Cal State). He is a member of the Antaeus Academy. Television: Boston Public, Unsolved Mysteries, and MTV. He is grateful to be working with such a talented and dedicated group of actors. Thanks, Mom and Dad, for your endless and loving support.

Dakin Matthews
Founding Artistic Director Vasily Vasilyich, Swan Song

Mr. Matthews was previously the Artistic Director of the Berkeley Shakespeare Festival and the California Actors Theatre. He taught under John Houseman in the Juilliard Drama Division and was a founding member of The Acting Company. He is the resident dramaturge and an Associate Artist of the Old Globe Theatre in San Diego. He has enjoyed a forty year career onstage, appearing with most California professional theatres. Most recently he appeared on Broadway in his own adaptation of Shakespeare’s Henry IV. He has had a busy career on screen, appearing in over twenty feature films and as a recurring or regular character in twelve different series, and is a member of both the Motion Picture and Television Academies. He is also a playwright, director, translator, Shakespeare scholar, and Emeritus Professor of English from Cal State.

Leigh Allen
Lighting Designer

Leigh has designed the lighting for various groups around LA and Orange counties. Some of her recent work includes Les Miserables, The Three Penny Opera, Johnny Got His Gun, The Boyfriend, Elizabeth, Almost by Chance a Woman; and lighting for dance and special events. She has recently been involved with the Children’s Conservatory Program at South Coast Repertory Theatre, The California Youth Theatre program in LA, as well as Musical Theatre West’s Summer Youth Conservatory.

Tuesday Conner
