

Mother Courage has only seven performances left. It plays Thursday through Saturday at 8 and Sunday at 5 pm through June 12 at the NewPlace Theatre Center, 4916 Vineland Ave, North Hollywood. Many roles are double cast. We particularly enjoyed John Apicella (a turncoat Chaplain who falls for Courage) and Gigi Bermingham (Yvette, a social-climbing heartbroken hooker) as two of the characters trying to get what they can from the war, but one thing we're always sure of with Antaeus is that all of the actors are great. There is free lot and street parking available. For tickets, call (866) 811-4111 or visit www.antaeus.org.

Posted by Dara Weinberg in Theatre

http://www.laist.com/archives/2005/06/03/get_out_of_bed_and_look_alive.php