What city hosts the best classical Spanish theater in the world? Madrid? Miami? Manila?

Would you believe El Paso? Yes, that El Paso, the Texas border town that no one has ever mistaken for a cultural oasis.

That perception has started to change due to the Siglo de Oro Drama Festival, a two-week festival devoted to plays from Spain's golden age of theater, 1560 to 1660. Thanks to Don Dietz of Tempe, Valley playgoers can get a taste of this
